Entrance Exam Procedures for the 2026 Master's Program of Medical Science

In addition to the current admission criteria introduced in the 2026 entrance exam, the admission policy of the Master's Program of Medical Science allows applicants to specify their desired research supervisor when applying.

In accordance with this admission policy, the 2026 entrance exam will be conducted based on the following procedures. Therefore, please familiarize yourself with these procedures prior to submitting your application.

1. Prospective Research Supervisor

- (1) Prior to taking the entrance exam, you have the option of specifying your desired research supervisor.

Regardless of whether or not you exercise this option, you are encouraged to visit as many of the research laboratories in which you are interested as possible.

The entrance exam will be conducted in an impartial manner, regardless of whether or not you have specified a research supervisor.

- (2) You can specify your desired research supervisor from the Graduate School of Medicine faculty (as per the List of Research Supervisors) prior to taking the entrance exam. Each research supervisor can accept about two students, as described on the List of Research Supervisors. If you would like to specify your research supervisor, please contact the said supervisor before submitting your application to confirm that his/her research field and teaching policy agrees with your own research goals. If your desired research supervisor agrees to supervise you, please obtain his/her signature in the designated column on the attached 'Confirmation of Research Supervisor's Acceptance' and enclose it together with your application documents. On the Application Form, tick the 'YES' box beside the 'Desired research laboratory' entry, and write your major as well as the name of your desired research supervisor in the space provided.

The total quota for so-called 'cooperative departments', namely the Institute of Medical Sciences and the Institute for Quantitative Biosciences, is four or less. Preferences will be addressed and decided upon only after entry, meaning they may not always be fulfilled.

- (3) If you would prefer not to specify your research supervisor, tick the 'NO' box beside the 'Desired research laboratory' entry on the Application Form. Even if you intend to take the entrance exam without specifying a research supervisor, please contact the faculty member that you would like to receive research supervision from before submitting your application if he/she is available.

- (4) The Graduate School of Medicine will host an 'Admissions Guidance for the Master's Program of Medical Science on Saturday, 24 May, 2025 to allow interested applicants to meet their desired research supervisors before submitting their application, and participation is strongly encouraged.

Refer to the Master of Medical Science's website for details:

<https://www.m.u-tokyo.ac.jp/mms/guidance.html>

- (5) The entrance exam consists of a primary exam (written exam: specialized subject) and a secondary exam (oral exam).
- (6) As a general rule, applicants who specify their desired research supervisor and subsequently pass the entrance exam are not allowed to change their research supervisor following enrollment.
- (7) Successful applicants who have not specified a research supervisor are required to select a research supervisor after undergoing rotation following enrollment. In this case, however, it may not be possible to satisfy a research supervisor preference after enrollment if the quota has already been filled.
- (8) As a general rule, students of Department of Medical Science aren't allowed to outsource their research instruction to other laboratories, etc., whether on or off campus.

2. Statement of Reasons for Desired Major

Please submit, along with application documents, "Statement of Reasons for Desired Major" which describes the reasons for selecting your desired major in two A4 pages without stapling, and write 'Statement of Reasons for Desired Major' along with your name and page number at the top left of each page.

3. Entrance Exam

Please see the relevant parts on Japanese Version.

Notice to 2026 Master's Program of Medical Science Entrance Examinees

The first three months of the Master's Program of Medical Science consists of lectures and practical training in basic medical sciences (Note ①), after which students begin their research under the guidance of the research supervisors. While students complete this program by summarizing the results of their research in a master's thesis, it is anticipated that students will continue on to the doctoral program.

Students who specified their preferred research supervisor before admission can commence their research under said supervisor while taking the above-mentioned lectures and practical work on basic medical sciences. On the other hand, students who did not specify their preferred research supervisor before admission shall select their supervisor after first undergoing research rotation (Note ②).

The entire process from admission to completion of the master's program is outlined below for your reference.

Process from admission to completion:

1st year

1 April	Admission to the Master's Program of Medical Science
Early April	Admissions guidance
- Late June	Summer semester classes (lectures, practical work etc.)
- Late July	Rotation (students who have not yet decided on their preferred research supervisors visit various labs)
Late August	Students who have not yet selected a research supervisor make a decision.
1 October -	Assignment to research laboratory (exercises, practical work)

2nd year

April
- Early February	Assignment to research laboratory (exercises, practical work, hospital Internship (only applicant))
July	Application for Doctoral Program of Medicine
Mid-October	Entrance Examination for Doctoral Program of Medicine (Students who are expected to complete the Graduate School of Medicine's Master's Degree in Medical Science program are exempt from the written exam.)
Early February	Presentation of master's thesis
March	Completion of Master's Program of Medical Science

April	Admission to the Doctoral Program in Medicine
-------	---

Note ①: Coursework consists of lectures and practical training on basic medicine as well as a hospital internship (only applicant). The lectures and practical training are conducted by the Basic Medicine Research Laboratory, which teaches basic medical knowledge. The hospital internship is approximately two weeks long, during which time the students divide into several teams and attend the University of Tokyo Hospital to experience the importance of medicine in an actual clinical setting.

Note ②: 'Rotation' refers to the period in which students who did not specify their preferred research supervisor prior to admission, visit the research laboratories in which they have developed an interest through the coursework described in ① above to experience the atmosphere of the laboratory and confirm the type of research conducted and guidance provided. Meanwhile, students who already specified their preferred research supervisor prior to admission commence their research under the guidance of the research supervisor.

Note ③: Lectures and practical work's content may change.

Note ④: Hospital Internship applicant must obtain antibody test before the internship. Details will be explained in the guidance for enrollees.
